CMC 1955 Mercedes-Benz 300 SLR
1:18 scale | $350

The list of sports car Holy Grail includes the Mercedes-Benz 300 SL Gullwing coupe. It may even be at the top of the list. At the top of any mega-collector's list of must-haves should be this all-new CMC 1:18-scale beauty. Hand-constructed of 1,817 separate components, this is truly one of the best diecast cars to be released in the past year. The fit and finish is worthy of Pebble Beach accolades. The engine looks so remarkably real you'd swear it could start. The operation of the opening doors, hood, trunk and steering is precise and as perfect as any seen in these pages. Prices for a real 300 SL Gullwing coupe have reached into the millions of dollars. The CMC-scale version looks like a million as well, but is listed at a very modest price. Like all good things, the supply is short and demand will be high.

AMERICAN ENGINE-NEW-A-TEE

AUTOMODELLO Bricklin SV1
1:43 scale | $95

The cottage sports car industry has brought us many notable creations such as the Cobra, DeLorean, Griffith and Vector. One lesser known was the Canadian-built Bricklin. This was a gull-winged coupe powered by an AMC 360cid V-8. Later, Malcolm Bricklin converted to Ford 351cid Windsor V-8s. Manx dune buggy creator Bruce Meyers built the concept car. Automodello is quickly becoming known as a diecast maker that is willing to step into the abyss to create otherwise lost automotive treasures. It did so with the Griffith and now the Bricklin. Clad in original orange, this is an extremely high-quality 1:43-scale replica with excellent fit and finish, a fully detailed interior and accurate trim, tires and wheels. Production is limited to 399 pieces, so act fast to own a vanishing piece of sports car history.
